

SYNOPSIS

Scene of the Crime - Home Sweet Home

Tatort - Glück allein

A harrowing picture greets Moritz Eisner and Bibi Fellner when they arrive at the crime scene: Member of Parliament Raoul Ladurner in front of his house, bewildered and with bloodstained hands, his wife stabbed to death in the kitchen, their daughter critically injured. What happened here? A brutal burglary? The many indications at first glance that this is a case of forced entry cannot be ignored. Ladurner also makes serious allegations against a businesswoman from East Germany, whose business deals he has thwarted as an MP. But Ladurner himself also starts to seem increasingly shady. It's been a long time since relationships within his family were as amicable and idyllic as he has painted them. The true depth of the tragedy uncovered by Bibi and Moritz in the course of their investigations is greater than anyone could have expected.
