

SYNOPSIS

The Competition

Der Wettbewerb

Life is good for Hubert Fischbach. His charming wife, Henni, is a wonderful mother to his children, Alina, 10, and Theo, 8. His career with an energy company is about to take off. The only thing that gives him any stress every now and again is his relatives. Whatever Hubert has achieved never has been and never will be good enough for his father, Hermann, a retired general who has always preferred Hubert's brother, Viktor. It all comes to a head during family visits; after all, the Fischbach brothers, Hubert and Viktor live side by side in two halves of the same semi-detached house. For the children's sake, the Fischbachs take part in an eco-project. But the fun is soon over. The competition to have the smallest ecological footprint turns into a no-holds-barred battle between the neighbouring Fischbach brothers. A fast-paced family comedy with Harry Krassnitzer and Ann-Kathrin Kramer.
