

SYNOPSIS

The Dead Emperor's Army

Die Armee der toten Kaiser

Here the precious figures from the terracotta army and other burial objects of jade and gold were shown outside China for the first time. The most valuable piece in the exhibition is the dead ruler's burial coat of armor consisting of 2,500 pieces of jade. The ORF team also went to the site of the finds in China for shots and makes comparisons between the lives and the ancestor worship of old and present-day China.
