

SYNOPSIS

Iceland - The Land of Women

100 Jahre Frauenwahlrecht - Island: das Land der Frauen

Iceland is considered the template for gender equality. Women were given the right to vote here in 1915, bringing about sustainable social change. 90 percent of Icelandic fathers take parental leave when they have a baby - compared with 19% in Austria. 48 percent of MPs are women. In 1980 Iceland became the first country to have a female head of state. As a matter of course women get equal pay for equal work - the Equal Pay Act is regulated by law - another area where Iceland did pioneering work.
