

SYNOPSIS

Coffee, Milk and Sugar

Kaffee mit Milch und Zucker

For breakfast or with a slice of cake in the afternoon; at work but also in private - for many people their daily life would be unimaginable without coffee. Many drink it black, others in turn with milk and sugar. However, when making a cup of coffee, hardly anybody thinks about the complex commodity-cycle. But globalization could not be made more transparent than with the aid of these three ingredients. This documentary sets out on a journey along the entire chain of distribution and value creation culminating with the consumer, portrays the people behind abstract market mechanisms and, using these three products, attempts to highlight (world) economic structures as well as the alternatives to a seemingly impenetrable globalization.

Year: 2008

Run-Time: 1 x 63 min.

Directed by Andreas Gruber

ORF and Provinzfilm International

Available worldwide

Languages: German (ORIGINAL) , English (DUBBED)

Format: 16:9 , 16:9

» SCREEN ONLINE