

SYNOPSIS

On the Rails of the Double Headed Eagle IV

Auf den Schienen des Doppeladlers IV

In 1900, the Austro Hungarian Empire began a gigantic trans alpine railway construction project - the Transalpina. The aim was to integrate the Danube Monarchy's key naval base, Trieste, into the Austrian rail network as rapidly as possible. An ambitious goal, requiring the construction of 5 alpine railway lines within a very short timescale. Part 4 of the Tracking the two headed eagle series traces the development of this mammoth project.
