

SYNOPSIS

Sein Kampf

Sein Kampf

In a similar fashion in the thirties in Vienna, Franciscan padre Cyrill Fischer fought against nationalist socialist ideas, promoting an understanding between Christians and Jews, even though the official position of the Austrian Catholic Church was more than diffuse. This documentary tells the moving stories of Irene Harand and Cyrill Fischer, how back in the late twenties they managed to unveil the true character of national socialism in their devastating political analyses, how they fought against the threat risking their lives, and how they have passed into oblivion since the War ended.
