

SYNOPSIS

The Mail-Bomber - Unsolved Questions

Der Fall Briefbomben - Die offenen Fragen

Four dead and fifteen injured - that was the final toll of the worst political crime in Austria's history. For four years mail bomber Franz Fuchs kept the police at bay, before he was finally arrested by accident at a routine roadside police check in which he detonated a bomb and lost both of his hands. Despite Franz Fuchs' conviction on all charges, theories have persisted for years that others were involved behind the scenes in the 1993-1997 mail bombing campaign as accomplices or assistants. Many questions relating to the mail bombings remain unexplained. Right up until his suicide in jail, Franz Fuchs never divulged important details of the crime.
