Those That Can Cure are Always Right

Wer heilt hat Recht

Many people, including doctors, are sceptical about the effects of alternative medicine and such therapies are often not recognised or subsidised by state health systems. This documentary explores the complexity of sickness and health and shows doctors who employ both standard and alternative therapies or explore the middle ground between the two. Can complementary therapies add something to conventional medicine and help to contain the exploding cost of healthcare? Is holistic medicine the way of the future - even without the support of lobby groups and pharmaceutical companies?
