

SYNOPSIS

Water for Afghanistan

Wasser für Afghanistan

Many rivers lack the necessary amount of water required to operate power plants or to be fed into supply pipes. Thousands of children die from drinking contaminated water. The World Bank is currently funding a multi-annual water supply rehabilitation project in a number of Afghan provincial towns. Visiting the country just recently, Gernot Stadler has documented the water problem challenging the city of Kabul and the provinces of Jalalabad, Ghazni and Charikar.
