

SYNOPSIS

Ireland's Wild Journeys

Ireland's Wild Journeys

This three-part series features Ireland's most heroic wildlife travellers and the incredible journeys they carry out every single year. From the 8,000km flown annually by the Manx Shearwaters to the transatlantic voyages of our eels and salmon, 'Wild Journeys' follows these voyagers to the ends of the Earth, showing the extraordinary challenges they meet and revealing the magnificent landscapes they visit en route.

The series publicises the vital work of Irish scientists as they tag and track the animals across the globe and reveals the amazing network of wildlife that links all life across the continents; how global warming directly affects our Barnacle Geese as they struggle to cope with a rapidly changing Arctic and the extraordinary distances covered by our marine animals.

Year: 2010

Run-Time: 3 x 50 min.

Directed by John Murray and Cepa Giblin

Crossing the Lines Production in association with Sound&Vision and RTE

Available worldwide except for Ireland

Languages: English (ORIGINAL)

Format: 16:9

HD

» SCREEN ONLINE